After an early breakfast, you set off from your lodge as the morning light begins to warm the African plains. A scenic drive of about 90 minutes brings you to Tarangire National Park, a land shaped by ancient baobab trees and the life-giving Tarangire River. Often called the home of elephants, this park offers unforgettable sightings of large elephant families gathering along the riverbanks, moving with quiet power and grace. As the day unfolds, keep your eyes open for lions resting in the shade, elusive leopards draped over tree branches, graceful giraffes browsing the treetops, and—if luck smiles—even the rare sight of tree-climbing pythons. Tarangire is wild, raw, and wonderfully timeless—just the way a true safari should be.

Tarangire - Serengeti National Park

An early breakfast at 7:00 am sets the rhythm for a classic safari morning as you head out with the rising sun. The drive toward Serengeti National Park becomes a game drive in itself, with wildlife encounters unfolding along the way. Soon, the legendary Serengeti reveals itself—Tanzania's largest and most celebrated national park, famous across the world for its endless plains and the dramatic movement of the Great Wildebeest Migration. This vast wilderness is ruled by powerful lion prides and skilled predators such as cheetahs, leopards, and hyenas, all moving to the ancient rhythms of the land. Every mile brings a new story, and by the time you arrive, the Serengeti already feels alive beneath your wheels.

As the landscape changes from open plains to rolling highlands, you continue to Ngorongoro Farm House for dinner and overnight. Located just outside the Ngorongoro Conservation Area, this charming lodge is set amid beautiful countryside, offering wide views of farmland, forested hills, and open skies. Midday, you pause for a picnic lunch surrounded by this extraordinary setting, with wildlife never far from view.
